

Dixcart Business Centres: Serviced Offices Where and Why?

28th November 2019

Dixcart Business Centres offer extensive serviced office capacity and are ideal for companies establishing themselves in a new location. Dixcart Business Centres are located in Guernsey, the Isle of Man, Malta and the UK.

Business Centres can offer a productive work environment and a cost effective option for organisations with international interests wishing to operate from a particular location. The international arena is changing and with the implementation of anti Base Erosion and Profit Shifting legislation (BEPS) it is becoming increasingly important to demonstrate real substance and genuine activity.

The Issues of Substance and Value Creation

Substance is an important factor for organisations to take into account, especially international companies seeking to establish subsidiaries in other countries. In addition new measures are being implemented to ensure that corporate tax is levied where real value creation takes place.

Companies must show that the management, control and day to day decisions concerning their activity are taken in each specific foreign jurisdiction and that the company itself operates through an establishment which provides a real presence in that location. In the event that substance and presence are not demonstrated or that no real value creation has taken place in that jurisdiction, the tax benefits enjoyed by the subsidiary company may be negated by a tax imposition in the country where the parent company is based.

The Benefits of Serviced Offices

Companies setting up for the first time in a jurisdiction will require premises for the staff and directors who manage and control the business to create value in the jurisdiction.

Dixcart serviced offices provide high quality, flexible furnished accommodation together with sophisticated IT and communication systems.

A comprehensive range of administrative support and professional services are also available. These include:

- Accounting
- Business Planning

Malta's full imputation system of taxation allows generous unilateral relief and tax refunds:

- Companies operating in Malta are subject to a corporate tax rate of 35%.
However, shareholders enjoy low effective rates of Maltese tax as Malta's full imputation system of taxation allows generous unilateral relief and tax refunds:

- Active income – in most instances shareholders can apply for a tax refund of 6/7ths of the tax paid by the company on the active profits used to pay a dividend. This results in an effective Maltese tax rate of 5% on active income.
- Passive income – in the case of passive interest and royalties, shareholders can apply for a tax refund of 5/7ths of the tax paid by the company on the passive income used to pay a dividend. This results in an effective Maltese tax rate of 10% on passive income.

- Holding companies – the dividends and capital gains derived from participating holdings are not subject to corporate tax in Malta.
- There is no withholding tax payable on dividends.
- Advance tax rulings can be obtained.
